guide as on the list of compromises has already become ready. "We get them," Nanook agreed. "But not a lot. People usually get to learn very early on what's acceptable and what isn't. They've all got eyes, ears, and brains." But SD's were already pouring out of the guardroom behind the main doors of the Government Center and racing along the corridor toward the communications facility while civilians flattened themselves against the walls to get out of the way, and others who had been working late peered from their offices to see what was happening. The engineer in coveralls who had been working inconspicuously at an opened switchbox through an access panel in the floor closed a circuit, and a reinforced fire-door halfway along the corridor - closed itself in the path of the oncoming SD's. The SD major leading the detachment stared numbly at it for a few seconds while his men came to a confused halt around him. "Back to the front stairs," he shouted. "Go up to Level Three, and come down on the other side." Leilani's palms were still damp. She blotted them again. In spite of the August heat, her hands were cold. Well, it's not difficult to see who the next target would be, is it. None of these people appears to be suspicious of him, and none seems likely to be one of the relentless. You can roll with that one. "He wouldn't believe us," Lechat said bleakly. "It sounds like the first bluff anyone would try." "What stuff?" Bobby asked, staggering and bewildered, as they ought to be, but instantly balanced and oriented, as though they have. "It certainly puts a new light on things," Lechat conceded. He sat back again, looked from one to the other, and spread his hands resignedly. "So am I to take it that I shouldn't assume your Support in the matter I talked about earlier?" Lechat pursed his lips for a second, and then nodded curtly. "It do it," he said simply. He averted his eyes for a moment longer, and then looked across at Celia. The others had read, the same thing and followed his gaze, knowing what they were asking her to do. Colman could see the torment in her eyes as she looked back at Lechat. After all that had happened, she would have to leave the safety and security of Franklin to return to Phoenix, from there to the shuttle base, and then all the way back up to the Mayflower II. For all of Geneva's. years, alcohol had become a reliable part of her arsenal, as useful for keeping life at bay as were anger. "SO you're happy you can handle it," Bernard said. Lechat nodded. "That was already understood," he replied grimly. "So suppose someone else showed up who thought he knew just-as much. What if half the people around here thought so too, and the others didn't? Who decides? How would you resolve something like that?" door to let her enter. "Oh, I see." Leilani squinted with righteous indignation. "So you refused to give it to him." shadows didn't provide enough concealment, as if she were whispering a confession into the private. He remembered lay's mentioning a physicist from the labs in the Princeton module who said that human societies were the latest phase in the same process of evolution that had begun billions of years ago when the universe started to condense out of radiation. Evolution was a business of survival. Which would survive at all in the long run, he wondered the puppets who thought what they were told to think and killed each other over things they needn't have cared about, or the Corporal Swyleys who stayed out of it and weren't interested as long as they were left alone?.
